

Study Abroad

International experience has become an indispensable qualification in today's job market. Working knowledge of at least one foreign language and intercultural skills are expected of job seekers. For this reason you should take the opportunity to go abroad for a semester at one of our partner universities, or search for an overseas internship to integrate into your studies.

The following pages will give you some basic information about studying abroad. The staff at the International Office can provide further individual advice and personally answer all your questions. Come and talk to us!
